A Short Course on Economic Valuation of Ecosystem Services and Goods

CHIESA Project
Lutheran Uhuru Hotel & Conference Center, Moshi/Tanzania
18th – 20th April 2012

Reuben M.J. Kadigi
Course Objective

• To equip the participants with the knowledge and skills of valuing the different components and types of use and non-use values of ecosystems services and the practical application of the Cost-Benefit Analysis (CBA) approach
Learning objective

• At the end of the training the participants should be able to identify, characterize and quantify values and benefits provided by ecosystems using the concepts of Total Economic Value (TEV)
Course Content

• The course consists of short lectures accompanied with practical exercises

• The participants are requested to bring their own laptops with them to the short course

• They should bring also their own pencils and notepads
Course facilitators

• The course will be facilitated by a team from the Sokoine University of Agriculture, Tanzania

• Main teachers will be:
  – Dr. Reuben Kadigi &
  – Dr. Japhet Kashaigili.
Course Venue & Duration

• The course will take place in the Seminar Room of the Uhuru Hall at the Lutheran Uhuru Hotel and Conference Centre, in Moshi, Tanzania

• It will last for three days, starting on Wednesday 18th and finishing on Friday 20th February 2012

• Training starts 9.00 AM and finishes 5.00 PM daily